"Well, now, look on; one thing at a time, and we'll get ahead faster. How long before you expect to get through the islands, do you mean, be[illegible] enough into something?"

"About 17 or 18 days. [illegible] we arrive at Yap [illegible] Guagan. But [illegible] Help us a[illegible] Guajan is [illegible] I go straight back to Manila from there. You might get from Yap to Guajan on one of the catamarans, but the natives are no navigators, and it would be pretty risky business."

"It would be out of the question to make Guajan first, I suppose?"

"Rather. Of course it might be done, but at the risk of losing my commission and getting into hot water besides. You see, the regular trip for years has been to make Yap first, because the Caroline and Pelew governments there include two lieutenant colonels as gobernadores, against one in the Ladrones. From Yap the ship goes to Ponyapite or Petape, the largest island in the Carolines, and from there to Guajan. [illegible] Kusaie area, at the east end of the group, so you see a change of course might mean considerable inglorious [illegible]."

"If these islands were [illegible] with other pick or discipline, [illegible] pretty easy. Don't trouble themselves about such things. Don't worry about a good excuse for charging the course of machinery or coal. Some of the ships, we're carrying [illegible] for machinery and coal. Look here, Harry, we can't put a thing like this through without assistance. We've taken a good deal into our crew to do so entirely. Now, McPherson, my engineer, has sailed with me off and on for several years, and is under obligations to me besides. The nature of the man is McPherson. I wouldn't dare to tell him that while I don't take any stock in average human nature, I'm betting in the world I've got hold of that man. I want McPherson to have a share of the profits, [illegible] the whole crew, and they'll help keep his mouth shut, too. What do you think? Shall we let him in?"

"By all means. From what I've seen of him, I think he's a good man to have on our side."

"Well, I'm glad you think so, too. I'm sure he's a good man, and I'm glad you think so, too. I'm sure he's a good man, and I'm glad you think so, too. I'm sure he's a good man, and

FOR THANKSGIVING.—Edwin Gordon Lawrence will appear in the stirring military drama, "For Her Sake," at the Bache Vodtorium on Thanksgiving, afternoon and evening. The Rochester Democrat and Chronicle says: "The management of the Academy of Music is to be congratulated for having booked "For Her Sake" for an engagement last evening for the first time in Rochester. There was a good audience, and one that knew when to laugh and when to applaud. The play is well [illegible] start to finish. It was startling at times in its climaxes, but a sufficient number of the plot balance well. The part of Prince Valdemar is taken by Edwin Gordon Lawrence, who proved himself to be an actor of ability, and the flattering ovation testimony of his recognized genius."

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN interpreted by Stetson's Double Monster Company, which will exhibit [illegible] next Monday evening, has met the special approval of Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, the immortal authoress of that world famed drama, from the fact of Manager Stetson's adherence to the original text, which is a complete deviation from the custom of other Uncle Tom managers, who interpolate so many attempted puns, stale jokes and vulgar witticisms into their renditions that scarcely a vestige is left of the novel be forgotten work. As far from the great worth of the company, every act will be presented with new and elaborate scenery painted by the master scene artist of the world. The [illegible] Comical Topics, two fine roots musical Marks, the elegant scenery, the wonderful mechanical effects, the ferocious bloodhounds, two brass bands and the celebrated Lone Star quartette will add much in making the engagement a most notable [illegible]. Prices, 25, 35 and 50 cents. Seats on sale at Hyde & Howe's drug store.

Pleasant Dreams.

It does not lie in the painter's fancy to imagine a prettier picture than that of a young girl, with lips luscious with the promise of love, half parted in the smiles of happy dreamland. The mind of happy maidenhood is a clear and polished mirror, which, when the wits go wandering into the ghostland of dreams, reflects the impressions of waking hours. If those impressions are pleasant and painless and happy, she will smile in her sleep. If the impressions are those of a suffering woman, tortured with the special ailments to which the feminine organism is liable, the picture is spoiled by the [illegible] of correspondency. Maladies of this nature [illegible] woman for joyous maidenhood and for capable motherhood. They incapacitate her to bear the burdens of life in any sphere of action. Household, marital and social duties alike are a burden to the woman who is constantly suffering from headaches, backaches, dragging sensations and weakening drains. Dr Pierce's Favorite Prescription positively, completely, unfailingly cures troubles of this nature. It imparts health, strength, vigor to the distinctly womanly organs. It fits for carefree, healthy maidenhood, happy wifehood and capable motherhood.

"I have a little step-daughter who had St. Vitus's Dance, which your medicine cured," writes Mrs T. F. Rose, of [illegible], Janesville Co. [illegible] one cent's worth of good. DRAPED LINCOLN'S COFFIN.

Flag Sacred with Hallowed Memories in Moth Proof Case at War Department.

Inclosed in a moth proof glass case in Secretary Alger's office is a flag with a history. This emblem was used to drape the casket of President Lincoln when his remains lay in state in the rotunda of the capital in April, 1865, and enveloped the casket on its long journey through the states to its final resting place at Springfield, Ill. After the ceremonies had been concluded the flag was removed from the casket and shipped to Washington, where it was cleaned and placed in the case in which are moth balls to prevent as far as possible, its decay.

The flag is draped as only experts [illegible] is an institution rending its history.
